EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

After reviewing the challenges African Americans experience in the areas of economics, education, and health, summit participants are calling for a range of reforms. These proposed reforms were developed during the African American Summit: A Deliberation on Health, Education, and the Economy, held September 21, 2012 in Albuquerque. The purpose of the summit was to determine the most important next steps in strengthening the status of African Americans in New Mexico. The summit produced a platform of 27 recommendations, of which 24 garnered support from at least 80% of the participants.

Summit participants requested increased focus on financial literacy education, access to funds and career opportunities, and business promotion. They also called for an increase in family and community involvement in education, training for educators that will have an impact on student success, the use of model programs. Participants also suggested activities that would focus on prevention, promote physical and mental health, dismantle institutionalized discrimination, and impact domestic violence. These recommendations and more are outlined in the complete report that follows.

Summit Participation

With approximately 100 attendees, the event included people from many areas of the state with a large African American population. Participants came from both urban and rural communities – and they included business people, educators, healthcare providers, advocates, as well as public and government officials.

Summit Process

The event opened with guest speakers including Yvette Kaufman-Bell, Executive Director, New Mexico Office of African American Affairs and John Sanchez, Lt. Governor, State of New Mexico. A panel of experts in economic development, education, and healthcare provided information on key statistics and resources important for African American communities. Participants then divided into small groups, during which they identified the barriers and immediate next steps needed to help eliminate disparities that have a major impact on the quality of the life in African American communities. Finally, all participants reviewed and prioritized the work of the groups.

Summit Background Report

Prior to the summit, all registrants received the African American Summit background report which provided key information on the challenges African Americans in New Mexico face. It is available at www.nmfirst.org.

PURPOSE OF THE SUMMIT

The African American Summit: A Deliberation on Health, Education, and the Economy provided participants the opportunity to take an in-depth look at the state of African Americans in New Mexico and focus on ways to eliminate disparities in three areas that have a major impact on the quality of the life in African American communities — economics, education, and health. The purpose of the summit was to build on the previous work of community members and to determine the most important next steps in strengthening the status of African Americans in New Mexico.

During this one-day summit, participants explored challenges African Americans experience in the areas of economics, education, and health. They identified key recommendations that need to be addressed. Some of these needs might be addressed through more coordinated public and private sector response, others by the education and healthcare systems, and others by local action and advocacy.

The summit's recommendations will be incorporated into the New Mexico Office of African American Affairs' strategic plan which is designed to give a greater voice and sustainability to the well-being of the African American community. Through the implementation process, collaborative community partnership throughout the state will be engaged to help move the recommendations forward. Additionally, recommendations will go to policymakers, educators, healthcare providers, and advocates to inform future policies and practices affecting New Mexico's growing African American population.

About New Mexico Office of African American Affairs

The mission of New Mexico Office of African American Affairs is to study, identify, and provide solutions to issues of concern relevant to the African American community. The agency recognizes the need for targeted intervention strategies that address and produce sustained results not only for African American's, but all New Mexicans. With a purpose of developing and implementing strategies targeted to the specific disparity needs of families, the OAAA strategic plan is designed to give a greater voice and sustainability to the well-being of the community. Under NM House Bill 909, it is the mandate of the agency to increase awareness and understanding surrounding the multi-dimensional issues which contribute to disparities and successes relevant to African Americans in the state. The agency strives to develop an action-oriented agenda for disseminating key messages that aid in the decrease and prevention of disparities.

About New Mexico First

New Mexico First engages people in important issues facing their state or community. Co-founded in 1986 by Senators Jeff Bingaman and Pete Domenici (retired), the public policy organization offers unique town halls and forums that bring together people from all walks of life to develop their best ideas for policymakers and the public. New Mexico First also produces nonpartisan public policy reports on critical issues facing the state. These reports – on topics like education, healthcare, the economy, and energy – are available at www.nmfirst.org.
